U OF W TAKES IT OFF FOR CHARITY

December 3, 2009 wrapped up a four month long weigh in for University of Windsor participants of the Windsor's Biggest Loser charity fundraiser for the John McGivney Children's Centre.

One individual, Kevin Larkin, raised over $1,800 for the 22 pounds he lost, making him the clear winner and not the biggest loser in our books.

Special thanks to Weight Watchers for their encouragement and support and to the students of the Management & Organizational Life Course of Windsor's Biggest Loser; for their keen entrepreneurial sense resulted in much needed capital campaign dollars to benefit the Centre.

John McGivney Children's Centre provides rehabilitative services, enriching the lives of children and youth with disabilities and special needs by helping them reach their full potential.
